The report says that so far as history scords the earlist production of semi-ituminous coar in the United States was Richmond basin in Virginia, in from the Richmond basis in Virginia, in which mining began in the early part of the last century. One authority states that 51,000 tons were produced from this district in 1822, and that in 1824, the production amounted to 67,040 tons; that in 1826 it amounted to 88,720 tons, and in 1825 to 190,080 tons. In each of these years the output exceeded that of Pennsylvania where the The production continued to the output exceeded that of Pennsylvania anthractic. The production continued to increase until 1832, when it began to decline, and by 1850 it had almost ceased. The statistics of carlier years of production in Virginia are seemingly unreliable. The census of 1840 reports the production for the State at 421,894 tons. No production was reported by the census of 1850, while that of 1850 credits the State with production was reported by the census of 1850, while that of 1850 credits the State with atput of 473,360 tens. PERILOUS WORK.

But Men Engaged on Mutual Building Minding It Not a Whit

White many have watched the work in progress on the Main Street side of the Mutual Assurance Company's tea story structure now going up at Ninth and Main Streets, few have observed the work being done on the extreme southern wing fronting on Ninth Street. During the week workmen have been engaged in the periodus task of constructing the meial cornice on the very summit of this wing, a height of from one hundred and fitty feet above the street lavel. Three or four men were suspended from the topmost frame around the structure in a gradle, which depended downward to the point to which the cornice was attached. In this fragile frame these men with steady nerves and skilled hands worked away as placidly at their dizzy height as though standing on territ firma. The work is not yet completed, and will be resumed Monday. Building Minding It Not a Whit investment.

DO YOU WANT AN INCREASE IN SALARY?

MONEY

It's a gilt-edge

Would you not think it an unreasonable proposition were I to say to Would you not think it an unreasonable proposition were I to say to you, I would like you to come to my school and learn shorthand, and, after you had learned or spent the "time limit," I should say to you, now shift for yourself? Or would you rather have me offer you a position, paying $75.00 a month, knowing very well you were unable to fill it? Is that fair? Well, there are two sides to this question. Almost any young man of average intelligence can secure a position within a reasonable time if he can write shorthand fluently and make a proper transcription of his notes. You will note that I say write shorthand fluently. There may be some misunderstanding about this, as I have known shorthand writers who say they can write from 150 to 200 words a minute, yet they cannot accept a position averaging a much less rate. In the transcription of notes one must know how to punctuate intelligently. This does not necessarily mean grammatically. In other words, there has been considerable difference of opinion as to expression in a business letter, so we use the words punctuate intelligently. punctuate intelligently.

THE KIND YOU WANT.

THE KIND YOU WANT.

Why are there so many high salaried positions "going begging" today for want of applicants? Did you ever consider this question? Is it not that the graduates from business colleges are incapable of accepting them? This seems to be the only answer to the question. If a proprietor of a business college accepts you as a pupil for the purpose of teaching you shorthand, would it not be proof conclusive that you went to that college for that purpose? They say they will assist you to get a position.
The position comes along and you are not able to fill it. Has the proprietor of that college fulfilled his part of the contract? Suppose you have completed the term of his instruction. Is that any reason that you have got value received for your money? Why not charge him up for los. time, at so much per day. What did you go to that college for? Was it for experiment, or did you really want a position? If the propriefor or teacher fails to teach you enough shorthand to get a position, ought he to keep the money? It is his duty to prepare you for it, both morally and financially on his part. It should make no difference how long it took you to learn as long as you applied yourself and used every effort and showed your desire to learn. All people are not solifidians. They want weight as well as air.

OUR PROPOSITION TO BEGIN WITH.

Now, we propose to fulfill this agreement from a common sense stand-point, and to teach you shorthand and typewriting, you to remain with us until you learn and to accept a position, as we believe that is what you are paying for. We will make a contract with you to that effect. This is business, and our name is Business Training School. In order to show you that we mean business, we will accept a certain number on condition that we are to fulfill our part of the agreement before we accept the money. Is that fair? We positively know we can teach you, and we show our faith in this way. We do not ask you to pay anything down other than to secure to us the amount for instruction, and you have the charge of that till we fill our part of the contract. We do business on business printhat till we fill our part of the contract. We do business on business principles, and all we ask you to do is to attend the school and rely on us for instruction and explanation. Have no heaitancy about asking questions. Take us into your confidence about any matter concerning a business education, whether it be instruction in shorthand and typewriting or regarding a position you would like to fill. This is our business, and we have had about eight years of experience in it. We can do more for you than you can do for yourself; that is why we succeed.

IF CHEAP, IS IT GOOD?

We have no financial inducements to offer to hurry you to our school, like a ten per cent. discount, before the first of the month, or special price for sixty days. No bargain counter noise of any description. We know you cannot get something for nothing, but you can easily get nothing for something.

Mr. McGheo is a native of Bedford FAIR AND SQUARE OFFER.

We want young men between the ages of 18 and 35 or older (if students)—a habit of reading—to teach shorthand on our fair and square dents)—a nabit of reading—to teach shorthand on our fair fair and square basis. If we fail to teach you within a reasonable time according to your ability, we do not want your money. We accept your money for a purpose, and if we cannot accomplish it, why should we keep the money? Is that fair? If not, it is at least honest. This is no sieve, and it will hold

THE KIND OF WORK WE DO.

THE KIND OF WORK WE DO.

The list of graduates from our Petersburg school, which you can obtain a copy of, is sufficient evidence that we make but few failures, and our proposition to get you a raise in salary is frequently shown in the list. It not only will increase your salary, but it will keep on going up. This is our specialty. There are a great number of people who believe they cannot learn shorthand, and it is not to be wondered at, on account of the thousands of failures. Then, again, a great many are kept away on account of a certain delicacy of feeling about entering a school to be publicly gazed at. We appreciate this modesty on their part, and will make arrangements to privately instruct the? They will progress as rapidly as if they attended the school regularly. We have done this in our Petersburg school. We fit our instruction to suit your circumstances in cases of this kind. State your conditions, and we will truthfully tell you what we can do, and as you enter our school under contract; or, in other words, make up your own contract, and we will tell you whether or not we can accept your specifications. You are running no risk then or paying for something that does not come up to your expectations.
